Youth Program

The Program of Emphasis Breakthrough for Youth of the Boy Scouts of America has been extended through 1967 in order to take advantage of the gains already made in the scout program, according to T. K. Dorsey, president of the Alabama-Florida Council.

"We are aware of our responsibility to serve our country through service to youth," Dorsey said, "and we have identified our needs, determined our resources, and are moving forward to mobilize the resources that will help us meet our goals."

The national Program of Emphasis was developed more than 3 years ago and is carried out in the Alabama-Florida Council through its four districts and 231 Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops, and Explorer posts.

Dorsey said that leaders of the Alabama-Florida Council are reviewing progress this summer and developing alternate plans and methods to ensure the achievement of the council's goals.

The Road Report

THE DIRECT COST OF MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS IS $8,500,000,000 A YEAR.

This adds up to about $24 million a day or $22,000 a minute. It would require 8,333 men, each one working eight hours daily without rest and each one handling a dollar bill every second to count out the direct cost of accidents as fast as they occur.

Battle Against Mosquito Raging In Alabama

Four counties in Alabama began a campaign during July to rid the state of the most unwanted occupants - the Aedes Aegypti or the yellow-fever mosquito.

Mobile, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, and Russell counties are the first of many areas in Alabama to begin a program for the eradication of the insect according to Dr. Ira Myers, State Health Officer. Other Southern states are also participating in the campaign.

Technical supervision and finances for the project which is officially known as the Aedes Aegypti eradication program are being supplied through the U. S. Public Health Service in cooperation with the Alabama Department of Public Health.

The yellow-fever mosquito is the only one in the United States known to be a carrier of yellow and dengue fevers. It found its way to America during the days of sailing ships when few restrictions to prevent its entry were available.

No virus of yellow fever has appeared in the United States for approximately 50 years, but the carrier of the disease, the mosquito, exists in great numbers in urban centers and certain rural areas of the Southern states.

The yellow-fever mosquito (Aedes Aegypti) is a highly domesticated insect. It depends a great deal on the carelessness of man for survival. Any piece of rubbish or trash lying in the yard that will hold water is a potential breeding place.

The mosquito breeds in abandoned automobiles, old appliances, old tires, and any water-holding containers around yards. The female deposits her eggs on the sides of the containers just above the water line, but they may not hatch for more than a year.

Strangely enough, they do not breed in ground pools, ditches or lakes. To eradicate the mosquito, a thorough and complete inspection of all premises within the state is required. Treatment by hand and power sprayers is applied to containers when breeding is discovered. A radius of 300 feet around the containers is also sprayed to kill any adult mosquitoes.

Programs for local cleanup of breeding sites will be of great aid. Agricultural engineers, eliminates need for supporting columns to hold walls in place. FBR-38

Retired Military Officers Are Asset To Wiregrass Area

The retired military officer is a new and potent factor in Wiregrass political, civic and economic life. This was revealed by a survey conducted by the Fort Rucker Chapter of the Retired Officers Association.

The survey shows that there are more than 500 retired officers living in the Wiregrass Area. Most of these have a wife and one or two children. The retired military in the area is therefore represented by 1,500 to 2,000 people.

It also revealed that the retired officer is having no trouble assimilating himself into the area even if he was born and reared thousands of miles away. For the past 20 or 30 years the average retired officer and his family have moved to a different part of the United States about once every three years.

They have lived in a foreign country for about six years of this period. And they will tell you that they have become aware that although each section of the country has some different customs and ways, these are, for the most part, small and almost insignificant.

Retired officers have also learned that every state in the union has some good points and advantages to offer. For one matter for the newcomer to find these and take advantage of them. For example, most of the retired officers questioned praised the fresh water and deep sea fishing available to Wiregrass residents. Many of them learned to enjoy golf during their military careers and find the Wiregrass Area to have many more days of good golfing weather than most areas of the United States.

Enterprise seems to have the largest retired community. The Fort Rucker Chapter estimates there are 11 families in that city. Ozark is second with 82; while Dothan has 53 and Daleville 46. Six retired families live in Elba. The rest are scattered throughout the area. Most all communities have at least one and some of them 10 or 15 families.

Most of the retired officers in the Wiregrass Area supplement their retired pay with a job of some kind. Of those counted, over 70 work for Ross Aviation Inc., a civilian contractor at Fort Rucker. Most of these are flight instructors. Another 30 or 40 or so work for Page and Hawthorn Aircraft Maintenance Companies. Forty retired officers contacted work at Fort Rucker as Civil Service employees.

In Civil Service the retired officer is employed mostly in positions that take advantage of his pre-military or military training. They are aircraft test pilots, pilot instructors, equipment specialists, supply specialists, safety experts, aircraft accident investigators, technical writers, systems analysts, research technicians, and administrators.

The average age for retired officers in the Wiregrass Area is 47 years. Of those contacted all were married and almost all had children living with them. With the average number of children is 15 years, the Catholic Digest states, the Anglican Catholic, 800 yards away, was designed in 1902 by Giles Gilbert Scott, a Catholic, and is regarded as one of the most majestic Gothic creations of this century.

Football Heat Deaths Preventable, Says AMA

CHICAGO—Heat deaths among high school and college football players could be a thing of the past if coaches and players follow recommendations made at a meeting here recently.

When football practice opens in a few weeks, the first hot days could be dangerous for players unless precautions to avoid heat illness are taken now, a panel of medical and sports authorities agreed.

Heat illness last year caused the deaths of one college football player and four, possibly five, high school players. It contributed to "close calls" and injuries of many more.

The five-man panel, appearing at a meeting sponsored by the American Medical Association's Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports, agreed that:

1. Prospective football players should get out of air-conditioned surroundings now and start getting accustomed to vigorous exercise in hot weather.

2. Coaches should abandon the old practice of withholding water from athletes during practice. Failure to replenish water and salt lost through perspiration increases the chances for heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

3. Athletes should be acclimated to hot weather by carefully graded practice of withholding water from athletes during practice. Failure to replenish water and salt lost through perspiration increases the chances for heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

4. Both coaches and players should be alert for signs of heat illness, such as lethargy, stupor, weakness, or unusual fatigue.

McLeod Warns That Rabies Is Fatal

"Although rabies is an uncommon disease, people should be aware that it is always fatal unless promptly treated by a physician," warned Dr. C. D. McLeod of the Coffee County Health Department. Despite the fact that it is seldom seen today, especially in cities, rabies is still an important problem, he said. Each year approximately two million persons are bitten and about 30,000 of them die.

The virus is transmitted by saliva through an open wound, such as a bite. It generally is present only in the saliva beginning with the two to three day period before the animal shows evidence of having the disease. Thus, an animal that has attacked and bitten outwardly appears normal. The picture usually associated with rabid dogs in which there is drooling from the mouth, snarling and unnatural stance or gait, does not appear until the disease is in its final stages. This is why it is important that an animal which has bitten someone be captured and confined for observation to determine if it actually has rabies.

In humans, the time between being bitten by a rabid animal and the onset of symptoms is also variable. They can occur within ten days or as long as seven months. Once symptoms have appeared, however, the disease is always fatal. The important thing to remember, the doctor said, is to get proper medical attention quickly. Treatment is most effective when started as soon as possible after it has been determined that the attacking animal was diseased by rabies.

Treatment is often painful and sometimes carries with it an element of danger. Every effort should be made to locate the animal because if it is not rabid, there is no need for the antirabies treatment, and the victim is spared pain and days of worry. A person who is bitten should try to give as complete a description as possible of the animal and the situation under which it was attacked to aid in location and capture.

"Your health department, in cooperation with the local veterinary society, is on constant guard against rabies outbreaks, and stands ready to offer its full assistance in the event of an attack on any person by a rabid animal," Dr. McLeod stated. He asked that each person with pets consider it his duty to protect both animals and people against disease by having pets vaccinated for rabies at least once every year.

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE SUNDAY

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself. The church is the moral and spiritual support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

Pam can't keep a secret. She'll probably tell us what she wished before the cake is half eaten.

Whatever her wish, it will be for a little girl type of thing.

But—what of me? What do I wish for my daughter? Success in a career... happy marriage... children... a beautiful home... a fair share of worldly goods... health... happiness?

I suppose I wish all of these things for Pam, in some measure. But if I had to limit myself to a single wish—I would ask for her a deep and abiding faith. How wonderful it is to have an unshaken belief in God's ways and His works, plus the conviction of His love for us.

Some of us may be limited in our ability to give our children material things, but we need never stint on teaching them spiritual values. Start taking your children to church and church school this Sunday.

MT. CHEAHA

When you want to make it to the top in Alabama, visit the scenic summit of Mt. Cheaha near Anniston.

Part of Cheaha State Park, this 2400-foot peak is the highest spot in the state.

The park, set in the heart of Talladega National Forest, offers a 14-room hotel, observation towers, tent camping sites, rustic cabins and a large mountain lake hundreds of feet higher than Alabama's largest lakes.

Cheaha's breath-taking view of points up to 100 miles away matches its elevation. The Alapine Mountains below Talladega, Lookout Mountain beyond Gadsden and Oak Mountain overlooking Birmingham can be seen on clear days.

Lutting upward from Alabama's Appalachians, Cheaha's rugged scenery draws more than 100,000 campers, hikers and swimmers every year.

The swimmers flock to the cool, spring-fed lake. They also bask on soft-sand beach and sit on the new boulder chairs along the shore. Based below a ridge of craggy mountains, the clear lake reflects images of tall pines and blue skies.

Cheaha Tower, built of native stone, marks the highest point in the state. The base of the 60-foot tower measures 240 feet above sea level. This tower, Pulpit Rock and Bald Rock give the park three excellent observation points.

The park is popular with visitors from March through November. Multi-color leaves are the big attraction in the fall. Spring brings mountain wildflowers which cover the hillsides. In summer the lake, forest greenery and temperatures up to 10 degrees cooler than the surrounding area are the big drawing cards.

Cheaha State Park covers almost 2,700 acres in Clay and Lawrence Counties. For hotel, camping or cabin reservations, write the Parks Division, State Conservation Department.

Snails and slugs often become a nuisance during rainy periods of the summer. To control these pests, remove loose boards, debris and other debris that might shelter them.

Army Specialist Five O. C. Bedsole, 36, whose wife, Ethelene, lives at Kin-dricks Apartments, Elba, was assigned to the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam, July 22.

Specialist Bedsole, a tank crewman in Troop C, Cavalry, entered the Army in 1952 and was last stationed at Fort Hood, Texas.

He is the son of Mrs. Ida Bedsole, Mullins in Alabama than Cheaha.

By July 1, 1966, 276,000 Alabama people 65 or older had signed up for the voluntary doctor bill insurance part of medicare, Harry N. Scott, district manager of social security in Dothan, announced today.

This represents 93 percent of Alabama's 296,000 residents of medicare age, he said.

As of the same date, out of a national total of 19.1 million persons 65 or older, 17.3 million, or 91 percent, had signed up for the medical insurance protection to help pay their doctor bills and other medical services. This part of medicare is financed by a $3 monthly premium paid by the beneficiary with the Government paying a matching amount out of Federal general revenues.

Mr. Scott explained that most people have the premiums deducted from their monthly social security, railroad retirement, or civil service retirement cash benefits. Others who have enrolled for the supplementary medical insurance protection, but who are not receiving cash benefits, pay the premiums quarterly by check or money order to the Social Security Administration or the Railroad Retirement Board.

However, elderly people who may not be able to pay the $3 quarterly payment at the time they receive the quarterly premium notice may pay $3 or $6 and send in the remaining amount later, Mr. Scott said. But they should make sure that payments are made in time to keep this protection in force.

Mr. Scott advised all area residents signed up for the medical insurance part of medicare who have questions about how premiums are paid, to get in touch with the social security office in the Federal Building, 100 West Troy Street, Dothan, Alabama 36030, without delay.

The phone number is 794-3001. The office is open from 8:15 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday, except legal holidays.
